DOHENY OIL LEASE CASE GETS REVIEW

Supreme Court Agreed To Inspect Record of All Leases

Washington, Mar. 22—(AP)—The supreme court agreed today to review lower court decisions cancelling the oil leases and contracts, which Edward L. Doheny negotiated with A. B. Fall as Secretary of the Interior.

Involved in the case are the Elk Hill Naval Oil Reserves in California and the contract between Doheny's companies and the government by which the oil magnate has constructed huge oil reserve tanks for the navy at the Hawaiian Naval Base at Pearl Harbor.

While agreeing on cancellation, the district court and the circuit court in California disagreed on the question of compensation for the storage tanks. The district court allowed $10,000,000 but the circuit court overruled that decision.

The civil actions at issue grew out of the sensational senate investigation two years ago into the leases made by Fall with both Doheny and H. P. Sinclair, the latter involving the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in Wyoming.

GRAY CAP ONLY CLUE IN SEARCH FOR BOLD THUG

Shot Woman While Her Husband Was in Adjoining Room

Chicago, Mar. 22—(AP)—A gray cap was the only clue the authorities had today in the search for an assassin who last night invaded the home of Mrs. Nellie Miranda, bride of a Spanish language newspaper editor, and shot and seriously wounded her.

Miranda, general manager of a Spanish-French importing company and editor of El Popular, and her husband were preparing to go to the theater when the doorbell rang and she responded. The sound of shots brought her husband to her side, but the assassin had fled five times, one of the bullets striking Mrs. Miranda in the neck.

The Mirandas were married in Crown Point, Ind., last May. She had been divorced in 1921.

SANITARY DIST. LOSES SUPREME COURT ACTION

Motion to Dismiss is Denied by Court, No Prejudice

Washington, Mar. 22—(AP)—The Chicago Sanitary District lost temporarily in the supreme court today in its contention that the Great Lakes had no right to challenge its diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

The court refused to dismiss the case at this time, postponing the question until the matter comes before it on its merits.

The action of the court was announced by Chief Justice Taft in this statement:

"In view of the difficult question arising on the record, we delay stating our conclusion until the case is made and all the facts are before us on the pleadings and the evidence. The motion to dismiss the bill is therefore overruled without prejudice to any question, and with leave to proceed in due course."

The suit was brought by Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Minnesota and a dozen states have joined in the dispute.

The sanitary district and the state of Illinois had asked to have the proceedings dismissed.

Tells Couple of Them So When They are Arraigned Before Him in County Court This Morning

Three men, taken in custody by police on paved highways in the vicinity of Dixon over the week-end were taken before Judge William L. Leech in the county court this morning on informations filed by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber, two charging driving automobiles while intoxicated, and a disorderly conduct. The maximum penalty was meted out by two instances to drivers of the cars, Howard Stedard of this city and George Eberly of Franklin Grove being fined $200 and costs and sent to the county jail for 60 days.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Leech told the prisoners arraigned before him that he regretted exceedingly that the law did not give him the power to send the two drivers to the state farm at Joliet for six months and to pay fines of $500 for endangering the lives of others on the paved highways.

Arrested at Central Park. George Eberly of Franklin Grove was arrested Saturday evening by Chief Van Bibber and Officer Jones on the Lincoln Highway near Central park, midway between Dixon and Sterling. It was stated that he resisted the efforts of the officers and was handcuffed and taken to the county jail. There he is said to have become abusive a second time and was placed in a cell. This morning he made a plea for leniency and told Judge Leech that he had taken three drinks at Clinton, Iowa, Saturday afternoon when he started to drive home.

Howard Stedard and Luther Wedlake of this city, together with two other men were passengers in a Maxwell touring car of somewhat ancient model Sunday afternoon on route 2 about three miles south of Dixon. Police were notified that the men were intoxicated and Chief Van Bibber and officer Jones started out to meet them.

Near the Cortright farm, they met the quartette, who, according to Chief Van Bibber were driving at a rate of 45 miles toward Dixon. Stedard was at the wheel and is alleged to have struck another car, smashing his own wind shield and badly damaging a fender, but to have continued on his wild drive. The police continued their chase to East Second street near Dixon avenue where two of the passengers jumped out of the car, but all were arrested.

Stedard was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail on the charge of driving a car while intoxicated and Wedlake was fined $200 and costs on a disorderly conduct charge. All were taken back to the county jail z z z z z

ONE IN JAIL IN SYCAMORE. (Telegraph Special Service.)

DeKalb, Mar. 22—F. P. Parker of Aurora is in the DeKalb county jail at Sycamore, where he is held under a charge of driving an automobile in an intoxicated condition. The charge was preferred against him last evening by A. B. Cheadle, banker of Rochelle, following a crash on the Lincoln Highway about midway between Mal-

Both cars were considerably damaged when Miller's machine crashed into the Franklin car driven by the Rochelle banker, but fortunately, none of the occupants sustained injuries other than a general shaking up and minor bruises. Motorcycle Officer Larson of DeKalb was summoned to the scene of the wreck and had Miller taken to the police station in this city, where he was held until wreckage of both cars was cleared from the highway.

Mr. Cheadle then came to DeKalb with the motorcycle officer and preferred the charge on which he was taken to jail at Sycamore. Miller is scheduled to be arraigned tomorrow.

State Regulations of Intrastate Traffic in Force Court Decrees

Washington, Mar. 22—(AP)—Another knot of the legal tangle growing out of government operation of the railroads was untied today by the supreme court.

It held that state transportation laws dealing with traffic entirely within state borders, and suspended during the period of federal operation, were put back into force again by passage of the federal transportation act of 1920.

The court therefore held operative and enforceable the Missouri statute prohibiting railroads from limiting the liability for baggage lost during shipment between points in that state.

BRANDFELLNER RETURNED FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Grace Church Members Happy Over Action

The annual session of the Illinois United Conference of the Evangelical Church, which was held in the State Street Evangelical Church of Rockford, closed last evening. Among the many items of interest was the report of the merger commission for the next session of Conference which will be held in Naperville. The churches in Illinois formerly in the Evangelical Association and the former United Evangelical Church will be merged into one conference to be known as the Illinois Conference of the Evangelical Church. The Grace Evangelical Church of Dixon is among the 108 churches that shall be affected by the merger.

There shall be four presiding elders districts known as the Chicago, Fox, Naperville and Peoria Districts with a membership of about 16,000. The reason the conferences in Illinois were not merged when the church was merged in 1922, was because they had not asked to have the enabling act passed by the General Conference on their behalf. Both conferences have petitioned the General Conference, which meets this fall in Williamsport, Pa., for this privilege.

The following charges will be added to the Freeport District: Florence, Forreston, Oak St. Church, Freeport, Geneseo, Hoopole, Pearl City.

Some of the appointments as read by the Bishop are as follows: Ashton, Rev. J. P. VanLever; Dixon, Rev. F. Brandfeller; Eldora, Rev. R. Heidenreich; Polo, Rev. S. G. Eberly; Sterling, Rev. H. C. Farley, Woodbine, Isaac Divan; Ottawa, John Divan.

About thirty or more attended the conference yesterday representing the Dixon Grace Evangelical church.

Rev. M. A. Goss, who has had the Eldora and South Dixon churches, has been transferred to Hoyle avenue church, Chicago.

OREGON FACING MISERABLE H. S. CONDITION, TOO

Formation of New District is Agitated in That Vicinity

Oregon, Ill.—Although there has been considerable agitation for organization of a community high school district here it is not probable that an election will be called to vote on the proposition this spring, in the opinion of John E. Cross, Ogle county superintendent of schools.

Chief sentiment for a community district exists in Oregon, where high school conditions at the present time are characterized as "miserable."

There are in the neighborhood of 200 students who attend classes in the high school building which also provides classrooms for four grade classes.

The school board is contemplating an addition to one of the grade schools here which will permit removal of the grade classes from the high school building so that space can be utilized for the high school.

Oregon was incorporated in a community high school district some three years ago but the district was large and unwieldy and opponents of the district succeeded in having it dissolved by the courts. The district was known as No. 218.

The plan now is to revamp the district in order that a building at Oregon might be easily accessible to the entire district. Something within the near future a petition to call a special election to vote on a district will be brought in. Supt. Cross believes and with a more compact district the proposition should carry and a modern community high school building for Oregon be made possible.

SENATE COM. DECIDED TO HEAR DATA

Overrode Sen. Walsh in Efforts to Stop Any Hearing

Washington, Mar. 22—(AP)—Public hearings on the prohibition question were ordered today by the senate judiciary committee.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, alone opposed the recommendation of a sub-committee of five in favor of open hearings. The sub-committee will conduct the hearings, giving six days to the wets and equal time to the dries. No date has been set for the hearings, which will be confined to five modification measures now before the committee.

Senator Means, republican, Colorado, is chairman of the sub-committee and the other members are Goff, West Virginia, and Harrell, Oklahoma, republicans; and Reed, Missouri, and Walsh, Montana, democrats.

Some Proposals
One of the measures would amend the 18th amendment so that states which were wet before the prohibition amendment would again be wet, with the government manufacturing, selling and distributing liquor.

Three of the other four measures proposed to legalize beer, one for 4 percent beer, one for 2.75 percent beer and the other for beer "non-intoxicating in fact."

The fourth would remove the restrictions of prescription whiskey.

ALLEGHENY RISES STEADILY; FLOOD THREATENS TOWN

Business Suspended at Oil City; Scores Flooded Out

Oil City, Pa., Mar. 22—(AP)—Industry was at a standstill, the principal markets of the city closed and several hundred people had been driven from their homes here today as a result of flood conditions which followed a partial movement of the 25 mile series of ice gorges in the Allegheny river last night. The river was rising and a forecast of rain for tonight and today gave the situation a still more serious aspect.

The low lying sections of Franklin were inundated and sections of Oil City were under from 1 to 5 feet of water with Oil Creek a tributary of the Allegheny river near the 25 foot mark.

Practically all the larger industrial plants were affected and workmen idle. Traffic between Franklin and Oil City was open by way of a hilly dirt road, the two concrete highways being closed.

Pioneers Will Meet at Ass'n. Tomorrow Night

Tuesday night is the one night of the week when Dixon boys 12 to 16 years of age look forward to the big "Bear Feed" and Pioneer work. Tomorrow the boys will complete the First Aid and Swimming tests for the examinations to be given March 30. These will complete the tests in these subjects and work will start next in building bird houses, kite flying contests and hobbies.

In the Bird House Contest, each Pioneer must build and erect one bird house for a specific type of bird—a double credit is given if the bird house is occupied by birds during the season. In the kite flying, a boy must build and fly a kite to pass the test. A contest will be put on during the early part of April when the kites will be judged and honor given to the boys who give the best demonstration of flying.

Tomorrow night the Pioneers meet for a scramble supper at the Y. M. C. A. at the usual hour—6:15.

Hi-Y Girls in Regular Meeting this Evening

Tonight the girls Hi-Y Club will meet for their regular meeting at 5:30 when supper will be served and the usual business taken up.

Coal Traffic Bureau to Present Data on Service

Washington, Mar. 22—(AP)—The Illinois Coal Traffic Bureau applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for permission to present evidence in the proceedings affecting rates on coal from certain producing sections to lake ports.

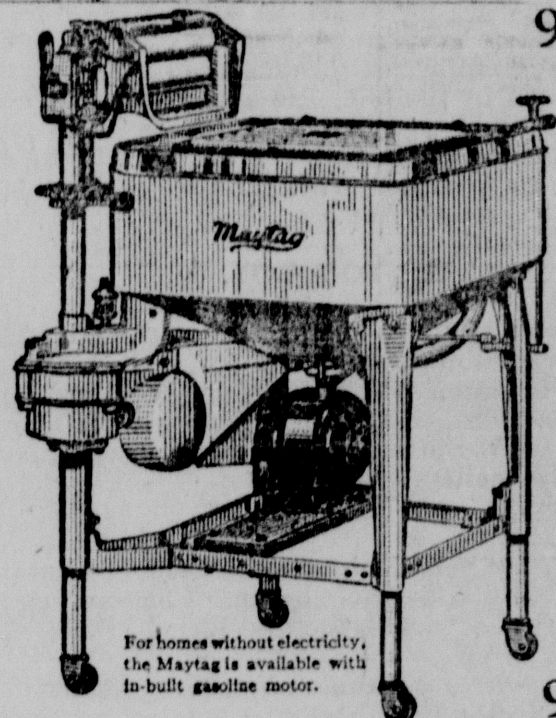

No proper decision could be rendered, the bureau said, without due consideration being given to the effect of the rate adjustments on the Illinois Coal fields, as well as on northwestern consumers, due to the exclusion of Illinois coal from these fields under favorable rate adjustments.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Odd Dishes.

"Won't you please suggest some odd dishes for the Sunday night light supper?" writes a western woman to me. "We are a tired of chicken salad or creamed tuna fish and peas on toast." Have you thought of these gastronomic confections? Jelly pressed veal or pork or chicken; deviled or Spanish eggs; tomato jelly salad; spaghetti with Italian cheese.

Pretty Homes.

Ever since, and before, the First Lady of the Land "went in" for early American furniture in the august White House, "antiques" of this vintage have flourished abroad in the land. The craze has almost become "common." Art critics characterize the lines of early American furniture as beautiful. But fashion turns thumbs-down on anything which becomes too common. It will be interesting to see how long it will be before early American furniture receives a mark-down, albeit it is pronounced good to look at!

Cynicism.

We quote from "The Cynic's Cyclopaedia": "What a man with no cares in the world invests in so as to give himself something to worry about." "Husband—a polygamous animal in a monogamous strait-jacket." But how many escape the jacket! The comment is our own to the last definition.

U. C. T. Meeting Friday Afternoon

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Methodist church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. "A Union Signal Day" program was given, which was very interesting, and opened by all singing, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," with Mrs. Klein at the piano.

The president, Mrs. Alice Missman, presided at the meeting and led the devotion, each member repeating one of their favorite verses of the Bible, followed by prayer.

The salute to the flag was given. Mrs. F. Hobbs, secretary read the report of the last meeting which was accepted.

Mrs. Rhoda Fister gave a splendid report of articles sent to St. Luke's hospital for the children.

Miss Plant, treasurer, read her report which was accepted. She brought also a pleasing and very favorable report of Mrs. Emma Giesler, who is a patient at the hospital.

Mrs. Missman read a letter from the National W. C. T. U. President asking for a campaign for new members and a plan to get them by appointing volunteer captains, every captain to get ten new members and do extensive and intensive work for a larger membership to be given in May, 1926.

Mrs. A. Huggins volunteered to do her best and get ten members. Mrs. Archie Klein favored with a pleasing solo, "Do Not Criticize Your Brother."

Mrs. Missman read a letter from the Soldier and Sailors' department with a call from a number of state hospitals for Bible, Union Signals, and other articles.

Mrs. Belle Morris, Supt. of the Literary department, read a very interesting article, "Look in the Glass, Madame Membership."

Mrs. A. Huggins read an interesting article from the Union Signal, "Six Years of Prohibition."

The collection was taken. The April meeting will be in charge of the Scientific department with Mrs. O. E. Strook as superintendent.

The meeting closed with the mizpah.

Eat and Be Well—Really Well

Thousands of men and women who think they are models of health are really living and working way below the level of their maximum efficiency because the foods they eat are lacking in certain essential elements of nutrition—food-iron for blood, food-lime for bones, and vitamins for every tissue.

You may think milk, butter, lard, fine flour bread, corn meal, meat and other customary foodstuffs to be ideal food, when, as a matter of fact, they are far from complete in the food-essentials the body requires.

In their study of dietetics and foods, the specialists at the Battle Creek Food Company have developed several foods that supply the needed food elements in the required quantity. We are the official agency in this district for these foods, a few of which are listed here.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Tangerines, bacon in cream gravy on toast, bran and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Toasted vegetable sandwiches, baked rhubarb, plain cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Stuffed calf's heart, steamed rice, carrot timbales, stuffed celery, maple custard pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Since children under ten years of age should not be allowed to eat the dinner meat a nourishing dessert is planned making the usual protein dish of meat unnecessary for them.

Left-over vegetables are reheated in a cream sauce to which cheese is added. The creamed vegetable is served between crisp triangles of hot toast and a "toasted vegetable sandwich" is the result.

This stuffed calf's heart is a savory dish that is worth trying during the spring months.

Stuffed Calf's Heart.

One calf's heart, ½ pound lean veal, 3 slices bacon, 4 tablespoons stale bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon minced onion, two eggs, salt and pepper.

Wash heart through several waters and remove veins and arteries. Let stand in cold water to more than cover for two hours. Drain and dry. Put veal and bacon through fine knife food chopper several times. Mix with bread crumbs, parsley, onion salt and pepper. Very little salt will be needed, since the bacon is salty. Add eggs and mix thoroughly. Fill heart with this forcemeat and sew. Sprinkle heart with salt and pepper, roll in flour and brown quickly on all sides in a hot frying pan. Put into a deep casserole, add boiling water to half cover, cover casserole closely and cook two and one-half hours in a slow oven. Add more water if necessary.

Make a gravy with the liquor in the casserole and pour over heart on a deep platter.

To serve slice down through the heart crosswise like a jelly roll. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

CHAFING DISH RECIPE—

Mushrooms and Oysters.

One pint oysters, 12 large mushrooms, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons flour, juice 1 lemon, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few gratings nutmeg, 1 tablespoon cream.

Clean oysters and heat to boiling point. Drain. Strain the liquor through double thickness cheesecloth. Chop mushrooms coarsely. Melt butter, add chopped mushrooms and cook five minutes. Add flour and stir until well blended. Add cream and oyster liquor slowly, stirring constantly. When the oysters are removed from their liquor they should be sprinkled with lemon juice and nutmeg and allowed to stand while cooking the mushrooms and preparing the sauce. When sauce reaches boiling point add oysters, salt and pepper. Reheat and serve on toast.

RADIO CONTROL COMPLICATED.

Before congress is a measure framed for control of radio. So complicated are the problems that have arisen that the legislators have before them a stupendous task.

As originally framed the bill touches upon the contact with industry and receipt of apparatus of foreign manufacture. The matter is in the hands of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries. The question of apparatus is held to be one for the committee on patents. Representative Davis of Tennessee, a member of the merchant marine committee, desires to have joined the issues pertaining both to wireless communication and wire communication. Yet, wire communication is in the hands of still another committee.

Organization of the senate differs enough so that jurisdiction over both wires and wireless is in one committee. It may adjust the matter with less complication.

Whatever the methods of procedure may be, the fact remains that problems that have arisen quickly in connection with operation of the radio and with manufacture and distribution of radio apparatus are not so quickly solved.

In its original form the bill attempted "to prevent the receipt from any foreign country or the transmission within the United States or its possessions, of any radio tubes or radio apparatus upon which there is any contract or agreement, the purpose of which is to fix the price at which the commodity may be resold or to restrict or prohibit the parties by whom or the purpose for which such commodities shall be used."

That was stricken from the measure by the committee, which has reported to the house what is known as the White bill.

Representative Davis submitted a minority report in which he questions the advisability of forming such a commission as has been provided by the bill. He asserts that the commission provided is not given compensation sufficient to cause men to give full time to the business. He contends that a full time body should be provided with jurisdiction over both wireless and wire communication.

A LETTER TO A BOY.

Here is a letter to a boy, to a boy about to quit high school and go to work on a milling machine.

The boy is a sophomore. He has failed in school just once, in the last examinations. His parents have a little money, not much, but are willing to make a few sacrifices in order to see their son through college.

Here is the letter:

"Dear Frank:

"I have just heard of your decision to quit school—but perhaps I should not call it a decision, because I believe you are merely drifting out of school on the first little adverse wave that struck you.

"That is a very bad move, Frank. You'll regret that long and often. It is your first big mistake.

"If you let the first little wave that strikes you wash you over, these waves are going to knock you down time after time, as long as you live.

"But, if you put your foot down now, with the determination to fight it out along this line if it takes all summer you will have beaten these waves for all time.

"Taking the easiest way doesn't pay, Frank. We have to do things we don't like to do, every day. You will find that your work at the milling machine has a fly in it, too—then where will you turn, what will you do?

"You say you want to be earning, you are coming into a man's estate, you do not want to be dependent. You say you will go to night school for your further education, and keep on working.

"But you won't go to night school. You won't go to night school six months. You're quitting high school—you'll quit night school, too.

"You won't go to night school because the real reason for your quitting school is that you have found a fly in it, you have failed.

"Failure in school or out doesn't determine a man's qualities, Frank. But courage in the face of failure does."

President Coolidge has expressed himself as being satisfied with the manner in which Sunday is being observed in the District of Columbia, so the law that was to have been a model for all of the forty-eight states probably will not be passed.

Isn't much harm in telling your wife the truth, except there are enough divorces already.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

He could scarcely believe his eyes.

Did you ever see Marky Muskrat?

No? Well, you didn't miss much, for Marky would never take a prize at a beauty show.

Marky's coat was made for good hard use in all sorts of weather, wind and rain, sun and dust, mud and slush—oh, just everything!

His tail is long and bare and hasn't a hair on it.

His body is short and thick and awkward.

His coat is the color of yellow mud on top, lighter underneath.

His head looks like a small guinea pig's head with black beady eyes and no ears to speak of much.

That's Marky! No beauty but pretty nice. He never did anybody any harm—just like the pussy cat in Johnny Green's—but kill toads and salamanders and newts and a few other things around Ripple Creek, and eat them. He had to eat some things, didn't he, to keep alive?

Well, one day Marky woke up in his house in the mud bank, after a long cold spell, and stretched himself. He hadn't been out for days.

But something told him that if he crawled through the ground halfway to his front door and then went up through the water (Marky's door is under water, you know) he would find the sun out and the air nice and warm and a certain smell that told you that right over the hill was the Spring Fairy with a basket of blossoms on her arm.

So off he started.

And every word of what he had been thinking came true. When he dived down, or I mean up, through the water and came bobbing up to the top, he could scarcely believe his eyes! It was so lovely and warm.

He swam over and crawled up on top of the bank and sat there and took in big deep breaths of the delicious air, all the time getting happier and happier.

Then he began to sing:

"Oh, spring is coming.

One, two, three,

And someone's happy.

That is me."

"Well, I'm glad I'm glad!" said a voice suddenly behind him.

Marky gave a jump for in his happiness he had forgotten all about the old fox, and the old owl, and the hungry old crow and the hawk. He was just going to dive back into the water, thinking it was one of them, when the voice said hastily:

"Please don't go. We didn't mean to frighten you. We were just going to use a little magic to try to get into your house to wake you up. You have saved us a lot of trouble. Thank you!"

Marky turned slowly. He wasn't quite sure yet whether the voice really belonged to a friend—or an enemy.

But when he saw the March Hare and his old friends, Nancy and Nick, beside him, he gave a little shout of joy.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" he cried. "I'm so relieved! I was just thinking how happy I was, and it did seem too bad to spoil it all at once. Now if I just had a good dinner, I'd be as fit as a fiddle."

"You need something besides a good dinner, my young friend," said the March Hare. "You need a good scrubbing."

"Me?" cried Marky. "Why I just had a bath. I'm still wet."

"I know," said the March Hare. "But you need brushing and combing besides. Mister Rubadub in Scrub-Up Land is waiting for you, so let's hurry. There's the path over there by that little bush."

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

A PROMISE OF HELP

Jerry Hathaway made his declaration so positively that I was a hat-check girl at the Beaux Arts restaurant that I contented myself by briefly saying "Yes."

Mr. Hathaway then turned to Jim with a grin.

"So you're the person who knocked Sellers down at the Beaux Arts. Good for you, old chap. It's worth that black eye. And I heard that he was much worse off than you are. That guy has had it coming to him for some time and I almost wish that I had been the one to do it. I came into the restaurant a few minutes after you had gone and heard every one talking about the fracas.

"I was looking for Syd Alston. Have you seen him anywhere, Jim?"

"No. I've not seen him for two or three days."

"Well, I guess I won't look for him any longer. When you said you were going to dine, I just remembered that I hadn't anything to eat since breakfast, so if you people don't mind I'll just edge myself in on your party."

We were just in front of a little Italian place and we filed in after I had said that I liked spaghetti.

Then Mr. Hathaway began to tell the whole story from beginning to end, and of course Jim said:

"Judy has lost her job."

"Well," said Jerry Hathaway, "I don't think she'll have much trouble getting another."

His eyes expressed almost more and warmer admiration than would make me quite comfortable.

"There's one thing, however, that I can do, and that is to make that gang of cutthroats return that money to Miss Dean that was stolen from her at the Beaux Arts. They can't tell me that you were trying to flim-flam them out of a dinner. No, I've heard something of this kind a couple of times about the place and if they don't look out, it'll get a bad name."

"Don't you worry, Miss Dean. I'll have your money for you by tomorrow night."

Jim's face broke out in smiles.

"I tell you, Judy, I'm glad you have Jerry on your side. He'll get your money for you, never fear."

Looking up, I saw a peculiar expression pass between the two men. It was as if Mr. Hathaway was telling Jim to keep his mouth shut about something.

"I'll be awfully glad to have my money back of course, Mr. Hathaway, but I don't want you to subject yourself to any annoyance."

"Don't you worry Miss Dean. It will not be me that will be subject to annoyance. You see those men sized you up as alone and friendless in a big city or they would not have dared to do as they did. Tomorrow will be a different story."

TOMORROW: An Embarrassing Question.

THE VERY IDEA

by Hal Cochran

DAD'S LULLABY

Hotsy, totsy, cake and pie, come now, youngster, don't you cry. Mister Sandman, bye and bye, plans to close your little eye.

Rockin', rockin', to and fro. Down we come and up we go. First it's fast and then it's slow. Toodle, tump-tiddle tow.

Ride the road that seems so steep, on our way so fast asleep. Happy playtime's sure to keep. Quiet, youngster, don't you peep.

Little paddies, held so tight. Time to turn down low the light. Peace and quiet through the night. Rockin' left and rockin' right.

Now we're on our way to bed. Wide-awakeness all has fled. Softly, softly is the tread. To the trundle bed we're led.

Maybe silly—maybe sad. Still it makes a youngster glad. Verse like this each tot has had—rocked to sleep at night by dad.

The best way to get people to tell you about their children is to start talking about your own.

SON—Say, pop, what makes the world go 'round?

FATHER—How many times have I told you to keep out of the cellar?

You'd hardly say the telephone girl has either a business or a profession. Just a calling.

The brushing of my hair, said he, is, after all, no art.

I do it 'cause I realize

The best of men must part.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Spare a moment to consider the fellow who considers your spare tire.

Punctures may come, and punctures may go—but your auto can't when you've got one.

One of the best known American customs is to drive to a garage when a tire hisses its swan song.

And, if it weren't for the good-natured fellow who removes the bad tire and puts on the spare, a heck of a lot of us would be in a heck of a fix a heck of a lot of times.

Think of the peace of mind when he finishes his job—and you go merrily on your way.

He's glad you're gone—and you're glad he's through.

We don't know who invented the first garage man—but thanks, anyway.

It's a shame an author, who pounds his typewriter day and night, can't sell his stories so much per pound.

When a doctor pays a visit the visit pays the doc.

My gosh! Now ya can't even believe cook books. A young bride baked a cake and the recipe said it was perfectly delicious.

WEALTHY FARMER OF POLO FOUND IN CLINTON, IA.

Had Escaped From Hospital; Wired Bank for Money

Clinton, Ia.—G. N. Livingstone, an escaped patient from the asylum at Watertown, Ill., was arrested in Clinton Thursday afternoon, after a brief period of liberty. Livingstone, in an unknown manner escaped from the asylum and went to East Moline, Ill., where he engaged a taxicab to drive him to Clinton.

Arriving in Clinton Livingstone telegraphed a bank at Polo, Ill., for $50. On receiving the money he paid his taxi driver the $17 fare and went to the Smith Motor Sales Co., where he made arrangements to purchase a second-hand car for $50.

Instructions the garage men to get the car ready for him he made a partial payment and went to the telephone office and wired his bank for an additional $25.

In the meantime the bank had notified Livingstone's relatives of the payment of money to him and the relatives phoned Clinton police and asked that Livingstone be located.

Officer Duffy found the man and took him to headquarters where he was held until his father, and an uncle, John Anderson of Sterling, Ill., arrived.

Livingstone it is said is wealthy and owns a large farm near Polo. He recently suffered a nervous breakdown and was taken to Watertown for treatment. He returned home last evening with his father and the family has not yet decided whether or not he will be returned to the asylum.

The escaped man appeared normal and made no protest over being arrested or taken home. He declared that he had intended to purchase the car and go west in the hopes of overcoming his ailment.

Neglected by Her Lover, Woman Agent Shot Self

El Paso, Tex. Mar. 22—(AP)—Daisy Simpson, who established a record of law enforcement unique for one of her sex, seems doomed to a tragic end in a hospital. The 36 year old former prohibition agent hovered on the verge of death today. She shot herself late Saturday night after appeals to her former associates failed to obtain her release on bond. She smuggled the pistol into the jail in a bundle of clothing.

A note addressed to Bert Sinkens, of San Francisco, read "I can't stand jail. The shame has broken my heart. Dearest, if you don't want me, the only one I depended upon, I am ready to die."

Although she had held law enforcement assignments in various parts of the country, she attracted chief attention as dry agent at San Francisco.

Johnson Asks Delay in Contest Against Schall

Minneapolis, Minn., Mar. 22—(AP)—A plea to delay final action in the Schall-Johnson senatorial contest pending investigation of a new development has been sent to Senator Charles S. Deneen in Washington by Donald Hughes of counsel for Magnus Johnson, former senator from Minnesota.

The senate elections sub-committee, of which Senator Deneen is chairman, was scheduled to make a report today on hearings it held recently to investigate charges brought by Johnson that Senator Schall of Minnesota was elected with the aid of funds from bootleggers.

Mr. Hughes said he had located Gale Plagman of Minneapolis, who was to have been one of the witnesses against Schall, but who could not be found while hearings were on.

OGLE FARMERS' CORN MEETINGS BRING RESULTS

Fine Interest Shown in the Demonstrations by Farm Bureau

Oregon—Much interest was shown in the seed corn demonstration meetings conducted during the past 19 days by the Ogle County Farm Bureau at six points in the county. There was an excellent attendance at the meetings held at Holcomb, Forreston, Polo and Rochelle. The disagreeable weather kept many from attending the Byron meeting last Friday, and there were not as many present at the Oregon meeting as were expected.

The Oregon meeting was planned as a special demonstration meeting for the purpose of featuring the corn disease work which was ably presented by Joe Brooks of Forreston, who was sent from Ogle County to attend the corn disease germination school at Urbana, during the first week of February. Mr. Brooks explained quite in detail the characteristics of the five important corn root and stalk diseases, illustrating with specimens and showing how to identify the disease on the germinator.

At all of the six meetings instruction and practice was given in selecting and sowing seed corn to eliminate inferior seed. Different types of germinators were shown and explained and specimens of germinated seed shown for practice in making and reading germinator tests.

This system of seed corn selection and culling on characteristics of "Utility" type have been advocated and demonstrated by the farm adviser for two years previous to this and test plots have been conducted on several farms in the county which have proven the value of this method in larger yields of better quality corn.

At the Byron meeting there was a good demonstration of the success of this practice in a lot of seed corn brought in by Simon Olman of Marion Township. Mr. Olman's corn was recognized as the best seed corn at the meeting in respect to freedom from any signs of disease and in uniformity of good type. The owner explained that this corn was the result of selecting this corn from a plot which he had planted from seed selected last spring for "Utility" type according to instructions given at the Farm Bureau meeting.

There are going to be more such seed corn plots planted this year by Ogle County farmers than there were last year. The average results obtained last year on 26 plots showed an increase of 4 bushels of sound corn per acre in favor of selected seed.

Tabloids of State History Told for Readers

Cairo, Ill.—(AP)—Dreams of the Jesuit followers of Marquette and Joliet, of early explorers who followed the windings of the Mississippi and Ohio in their canoes, and of the men who stood at the convergence of the two streams and visioned a great city controlling lanes of traffic bearing the commerce of a nation are approaching realization in the dreams of a new Cairo, built by the trade along the improved waterways.

Early plans for the city have been recalled following the improvement of the Ohio channel by the construction of fifty-two locks and dams, and the possibility of a lake-to-gulf waterway from Chicago to New Orleans over the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. A bill now pending in congress for the construction of a tri-state bridge connecting Cairo with Kentucky and Missouri, replacing the old ferries now in service, has also given rise to the hope that more roads will lead to Cairo.

Such plans have figured in the life of Cairo since it was first considered as a site for a city. Jesuit priests who followed their Indian guides about over the rivers invariably spoke of the conjunction of the two rivers in their memoirs as the location of a future city which would control the trade and commerce of the empire lying in the basin of the two great streams.

One of the first of the explorers to take advantage of the location was Juchereau de St. Denis, who established a trading post and tannery there in 1702. This first venture was unsuccessful, however, for the Indians, after waiting until his store of skins was ready for removal, swooped down upon him, killing most of the members of his party and taking the skins. St. Denis himself narrowly escaped with his life.

The first organized attempt to develop the country was made by the Illinois Land Company. It was organized on July 5, 1773, and the territory between the two rivers as far north as a line between Shawneetown and Kaskaskia was purchased from the Indians. For this immense tract of land the company gave the Indians 250 blankets, 250 shrouds, 350 shirts, 150 pair of shrouds and half-thick stockings, 150 shroud breechcloths, 500 pounds of gunpowder, 4,000 pounds of lead, one gross knives, 30 pounds of vermilion, 2,000 gun flints, 200 pounds brass kettles, 200 pounds tobacco, 35 gilt mirrors, one gross gun worms, two gross awls, one gross fire steels, sixteen dozen of gartering, 10,000 pounds of flour, 500 bushels of Indian corn, twelve horses, twelve horned cattle, twenty bushels of salt, twenty guns, and five shillings in money.

Development of the important site at the junction of the two rivers did not come until some time later, however. The township was surveyed in 1807, and an act to incorporate the city and bank of Cairo as passed on January 9, 1818. This venture ended in failure as did several other attempts later. The fact that the swollen currents of the two streams inundated the site was an ever-present obstacle to those who tried to build a metropolis on the river banks.

At one time a real estate company was organized and New York and London bankers were induced to invest money in a new enterprise. Charles Dickens was one of the Englishmen who bought stock. But even these loans failed to instill the life necessary for a successful execution of the plans of the promoters. Cairo remained a straggling village.

Because of its strategic position, Cairo was a jealously guarded Union stronghold during the Civil War. At the close of the war, the city again revived its hopes, for it was thought that post-war development and progress would give it its place as head of traffic on the two rivers. But these hopes, like so many before them, were never realized.

Now, the present-day Cairo, watching the long series of dams and locks in the Ohio river near completion, dreaming of the numerous barges which will ply back and forth throughout the year; listening to plans to make the Mississippi the greatest inland waterway in the world by the construction of the canal from Chicago to the Illinois River, and anxiously awaiting the action of Congress on the bill which will do away with its ancient ferries; Cairo, seeing these wonders planned, is hoping again.

Chicago Makes Record in Automobile Deaths Sunday

Chicago, Mar. 22—(AP)—A Chicago record for automobile deaths in one day—12—was established here on the first day of spring. In addition, more than a dozen persons were seriously injured in the Sunday accidents which increased the Cook County Motor death toll to 169 since January 1.

Fatalities for a similar period last year were 125, the 1926 figures showing an increase of 44 deaths or 34 per cent.

Since 1913 the price of potatoes has increased enormously, while the price of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gasoline has increased but slightly. This statement is confirmed by authentic statistics.

The United States Department of Labor gives the average retail price of potatoes in Chicago on November 15, 1913, as $0.17 per pound or $1.02 per bushel.

The tank wagon price of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gasoline in Chicago on the same day was $1.45 per gallon.

From these figures we find that a bushel of potatoes in 1913 purchased a trifle more than 7 gallons of gasoline.

Twelve years later, on November 15, 1925, the average retail price of potatoes in Chicago was $0.05 per pound, or $3.00 per bushel.

As the Chicago tank wagon price of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gasoline, on the same day, was $1.16 per gallon, we find that, on that day, one bushel of potatoes purchased 18 1/4 gallons of gasoline, or 11 1/4 gallons more in 1925 than in 1913.

Stating it another way, potatoes advanced in price 194% during the last twelve years, while the price of gasoline advanced only 10.3%.

This record is the more remarkable when it is considered that, in 1913, there were 194 barrels of crude oil produced per registered car, while, in 1925, production had shrunk to only 38 barrels of crude per registered car.

To balance such a spectacular growth of demand against such a startling decrease in supply, without greatly increased cost to consumers, would seem totally impossible and against all economic law.

Yet that is precisely the achievement that stands to the credit of the oil industry and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in particular.

It was accomplished by doubling the yield of gasoline from crude by means of advanced refining processes, discovered and developed in the research laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

These processes were leased in turn to competitive refineries, that they also might help to make the available crude meet the demand. In this way the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) passed on the benefit of its tremendous investment in research to the entire consuming public in the form of continued low gasoline prices.

The problems of the oil industry are as great today as they have been in the past.

The demand for gasoline continues to increase. The supply of crude per car continues to decrease. What is to be done?

Questions like this the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) must answer. It will be aided in answering them by the experience of years, by friendly cooperation within and without the organization, and by the faith that high ideals backed by earnest effort must win.

SEVERAL SQUADS LET DOWN LITTLE IN SPRING WORK

Big League Stars Get a Chance to Play in Their Camps

Chicago, Mar. 22—(AP)—The old adage that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy applies to baseball as well as any other line of endeavor. At any rate, the boys in the spring training camps are getting a little taste of fishing, golf and other pastimes as well as drill on the diamond. The Boston Braves took a Sunday off at St. Petersburg, Fla., and went fishing and golfing.

Out on the west coast, Pilot McKechnie of the Pirates planned to take his men to the ranch of a friend near Paso Robles for a jack rabbit hunt and barbecue.

The Cubs, also training in the west, will be pleasure seeking today but tomorrow are scheduled to meet a San Francisco team.

Two other teams idled yesterday, the St. Louis Browns at Tarpon Springs, Fla., and the Cincinnati Reds at St. Petersburg.

Connie Pessimistic

While favorable reports are coming from some of the camp bits of pessimism are being registered at a few. Connie Mack with the Philadelphia Athletics at Fort Myers, Fla., observed that the "Athletics look as bad as when they dropped 12 games in a row. They must wake up."

Holdouts are giving concern to some managers. Henline and Harper of the Phillies are still holding out for more salary. Another seeker is Bill Terry of the Giants. Rixey and Bressler, the last Cincinnati Red hold-out, planned to join the team today.

Maranville and Fournier are showing the Brooklyn outfit how to hit the ball at Clear Water. Optimistic reports of the development of the New York Yankees, were given out at St. Petersburg.

The Boston Red Sox took the measure of the Pelicans at New Orleans yesterday 3-0.

Walter Johnson and Reuther were scheduled to pitch today for the first time against Cincinnati at Tampa.

O'Farrell's single drove in the only score of the game yesterday at San Antonio, which the St. Louis Cardinals won 1-0.

The Browns start a solid week of exhibition games at Tarpon Springs. Records so far show that Cleveland players have made poor showing against pitchers for Cincinnati, the Giants and Brooklyn.

Rained out at Fort Worth where they were to have played an exhibition game, the Chicago White Sox were back at their Shreveport camp today.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. FORWARD PASS IS CURTAILED UNDER NEW RULES

Intentional Safety is Also Hit by Change Made in Rules

New York—(AP)—Unexpectedly drastic action against the forward pass was taken by the football rules committee at its annual session here in a decision to inflict five yard penalties for incompleting passes under certain conditions.

The new rule, designed to discourage indiscriminate use of the pass, specified that "a second and third incomplete pass which shall be made in the same series of plays before a first down is obtained shall be penalized by a loss of five yards."

Two such penalties would be the most a team could incur under the ruling, since the first play of the series is exempted and the ball would change hands after an incomplete pass on the fourth down.

Under another important change effected by the rule makers the team making a safety shall put the ball in play on its own 20 yard line instead of the 30 yard mark. The new rule, designed to eliminate intentional use of the safety, also provides that the attacking team must kick on the first down with the opposing eleven lined up on the thirty yard line.

QUARTER MILLION FANS SAW FIGHTS IN ILL. TOURNEY

Freeport Won Crown in Finals at Urbana Saturday Night

DeKalb, Ill., Mar. 22—(AP)—More than a quarter of a million persons attended the 1926 Illinois high school basketball tournament which was concluded on Saturday at Urbana. It was estimated here today by C. W. Whitten, director of the meet. The tournament, which was won by Freeport who took the final game from Canton 24-13, was the most successful yet conducted, according to the director.

Nearly 700 teams, a record entry, contested for the title. Receipts, it was estimated, totalled approximately $120,000. Admission charges ranged from 25 to 75 cents. Part of the proceeds will be turned over to the athletic departments of the local schools and the remainder to the state high school athletic association to be used for support of other prep school athletics of less drawing power.

Spectators at this season's tournament were treated to some high class exhibitions with competition strenuous throughout.

Athens and Flora were put out of the running in the first round of the final play Friday night only after hard fights. Canton, runner up in this year's race, despite the 11 point

London Paper Sees Much Activity in Munitions

London, Mar. 22—(AP)—The Daily Mail today makes no reference to a story which its Sunday edition, the Weekly Dispatch, gave prominence, concerning extraordinary secret negotiations for the purchase of arms and munitions and a plant for their manufacture by several European countries.

The Weekly Dispatch said that Russia for some time had been buying large quantities of rifles which were shipped to China and Persia and that she was still seeking more; that Greece had placed an order for 200,000 rifles in Italy; that Jugo-Slavia was trying to obtain 400,000 rifles and that Finland, Lithuania, Poland and Rumania and other Balkan states all were urgently seeking supplies; that German war stocks, hidden in nearby countries, were being sold wholesale and shipped as fast as possible to China and Turkey.

Although we daily supply numerous housewives with our white paper for pantry shelves and bureau drawers we still have an unlimited quantity. It is the most popular shelf covering—at least we judge so by our sales. B. F. Shaw Printing Co. if

THE GOLDEN COCOON by RUTH CROSS

SYNOPSIS
Molly Shannon, university student, has recovered at the home of the Cochran, where Gregory Cochran, bachelor lawyer, had taken her after rescuing her from the river. Molly had been driven desperate by the treachery of Stephen Renfro, efficiency expert, who deserted her and married the wealthy Miss Dillworth. Cochran has introduced Molly to his mother, who is proud and aristocratic, and not too well pleased to have the girl in her house.

Mrs. Parker was like a game little rat, hopelessly cornered, but with lots of fight left in her. "Well, you know, Stephen Renfro has been always at me—wanting to lend me money for you. . . . He knew how bad you needed it. . . ."

"Oh. . . .!" Molly turned with a violent movement and walked over to the door which opened on the back yard. After a considerable silence she said, "It was he, then, who gave me the money for these. . . .!" She indicated without looking at them the suit, shoes, hat she was wearing. They were the only respectable ones she had.

"Well," the distraught fairy godmother admitted unwillingly, "it began the time your father died. I didn't have a red cent, and you had to go. . . ."

"That too. . . .!"

Presently Molly faced round and came toward the cook table. "Don't think I blame you," she said quietly. "I know you only did what you thought was best for me. But— I've got to plan some way to return that money. I'll be going now."

In her room at the dormitory she tore the clothes off and flung them intolerantly from her. They were no longer new.

Seventy-five dollars. . . . For all her resources to pay, the sum might as well have been that many something for it, she insisted despairingly at the last place. The proprietor shook his head, while he eyed her curiously up and down. No, it wouldn't pay them to bother with a single switch, not even if she gave it to them. Her hair was quite worthless to everybody except—possibly herself! But as she was going away, absolutely crushed, an elaborately coiled blond head was thrust out of a cubbyhole. Its owner looked once at Molly, twice at her hair, and beckoned to the man. It seemed there was by the merest coincidence a customer who wanted that color—Molly's hair leaped. How much would they give her for it, she asked eagerly.

Oh, by stretching a point, maybe as much as ten dollars. The man made an impressive gesture.

"Ten dollars. . . .!" she echoed in a small, stunned voice.

He shrugged. She could take it or leave it. They were only anxious to accommodate her.

Twenty minutes later she came out of the shop, feeling light and queer and intensely conspicuous. Her pocket was heavier by only nine dollars. They charged a dollar—this she learned after the deed was done—for cutting it off. Of the avarice and cruelty of the shop-keeping class to those who are in distress she knew a little already. She was to know more. . . .

She was not thinking of that now. She sat down on a bench in the Capitol grounds, took out her small store, and counted it. Fifty one dollars was lacking still. She put the money back in her bag and sat gazing despondently at the ground. She had nothing else to sell—yet the seventy-five dollars must go to Stephen Renfro before she slept. . . .

After a time, a newspaper, sprawling where some former occupant of the bench had left it, claimed her dispirited attention. She picked it up, glanced indifferently at the front page, then turned slowly toward the want columns. . . .

A half hour later, she presented herself at the larger of the city's two hospitals. To the girl at the desk she indicated one of the advertisements in the paper. "This says that one of your patients needs some blood from a young, healthy person and is willing to pay for it. Do you think he would pay as much as fifty-one dollars?"

The girl stared even more curiously than the proprietors of the hairdressing places had done. Her stare took in the shabby dress, the clipped hair, the ancient sailor. "I don't know," she said, moving away rather doubtfully. "I'll ask Doctor Rodney."

Directly, a young and pleasant-faced doctor appeared. He gave Molly a brisk, businesslike once-over, which registered also the short hair, the old dress and sailor—and something besides. "Come in here," He opened the door into an inner office.

He motioned her to a chair and sat down opposite—at his desk—"You don't look as if you had any more blood than you need your self," was his blunt comment, after a second and keener inspection.

"I need the money worse," she said simply. "Do you think they will pay as much as fifty-one dollars?"

"Well, one can hardly put a price on that sort of thing. . . ." He shifted a little at the desk to get a better angle. "In fact, it's not usual to pay for such services at all, but—this patient happens to be a man and keener inspection. I can't say precisely how much. . . ."

"Anything less than fifty-one dollars won't do me any good," Molly spoke not less bluntly than he had done a moment earlier.

"Fifty-one dollars. Hum!—that's quite a lot, you know." He gave her another intent glance. "Just a minute—I'll see. . . ."

Before Molly slept that night a money order, with the briefest of lines in Mrs. Parker's handwriting was dispatched to one Mr. Stephen Renfro at an address in New York City.

"Ten dollars—I!" she echoed in a small, stunned voice. He shrugged. She could take it or not.

Thousands. The fifteen dollars she had offered Mrs. Parker meant going without a badly needed raincoat and the sacrifice of some of her most precious books. There was not another book that could be sold, not a cent to be squeezed from anywhere. Her scholarship covered merely the necessities; the little that she was able to pick up from coaching went to her mother. She had never owned a piece of jewelry in her life. Yet somehow Stephen Renfro must be paid. . . .

Sitting in her underthings on the edge of the bed, she looked up and caught her reflection in the mirror opposite. Was there anything of her very own that she might sell? She leaned closer to the mirror and scrutinized herself attentively. Her teeth were sound, white—flawless as Stephen had often said. Fantine in Les Miserables had sold hers, but that was a long time ago. They couldn't have had false ones then. . . .

The obvious asset, of course, was her hair. She took out the pins and let it slip, a shining, blue-black veil below her waist. It was very thick and slightly curled at the tips. Perhaps they would buy that. . . .

She twisted it up again hurriedly, brought from the closet a frock since relegated to second best. Lined on a sailor, almost as old as her own career at the university, it went out.

There were less than half a dozen addressing establishments in the run, and at every place it was the same story—repeated with either condescending or a pitying smile or her incredible ignorance. Hair is not being worn. It had gone out of style—this with a supercilious glance which intimated how uselessly out of the mode Molly herself was. What little hair was left, peasants in Europe furnished a few cents a pound.

But—surely they would give her

THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, a political boss, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

JIMMY meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she learns police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy hitting Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the handkerchief and stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland but ignores them. Later he is attacked at night by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Mary tells Jimmy this when they meet and he, trying to hurt her, accuses her of marrying for money.

That evening Jimmy and Olga see the man they are looking for—the man who is thought to have got the ticket stub—in an automobile. It is one of the men who had attacked Jimmy. They follow in a taxi, but the man and his companion escape. They later recognize his picture at police headquarters as IRE JENSEN.

Jimmy, in need of a job, finally finds one driving a laundry truck. Finishing up his first day, he sees Church and Mary in Church's roomer. Mary doesn't recognize him.

Now go on with the story. CHAPTER XXVII

THE hot color rushed to Jimmy's face. Half angry, half ashamed, he shifted gears viciously and drove on.

Had Mary Lowell seen him and deliberately refused to recognize him? There was no doubt in his mind that Samuel Church had seen him. Jimmy could still see that contemptuous smile on Church's lips and the possessive air with which he had turned to Mary. It was as if he were trying to flout Rand with his ownership.

His thoughts—as thoughts have an odd habit of doing—jumped back unaccountably to the little curly-headed boy he had seen that morning—little "larry" Smith.

He groaned. It was no use thinking such thoughts.

Mary had not seen Jimmy—until it was too late to let him know she had.

Church had called for her at the office, had offered to drive her home. She had assented without enthusiasm, and Church's efforts to be amusing and conversational on the way home she had been unresponsive and abstracted.

"Why so uncommunicative, dear?" he asked her. "Anything on your mind?"

"No," she said dully.

"The picked-out your wedding present, Mary?"

"You have?" She was staring straight ahead. She could not look at him.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE. Estate of John A. Dubois, deceased.

Public notice is hereby given, that the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John A. All persons interested are notified to attend.

Dixon, Ill., March 13th, A. D. 1926.

MARY J. DUBOIS, Administrator.

She tore the diamond ring he had given her off her finger.

"Don't you want to know what it is?"

"Of course. What is it?"

"An automobile—just for you to drive. A coupe. It's a beauty."

"You shouldn't have done it," she murmured.

"Why not? Don't you like to drive?"

"Of course. I've never driven, but I'm crazy to learn. But it isn't necessary, is it? You have two cars now. It seems so wasteful—so extravagant."

"My dear," he laughed, "I can afford it. I can afford to buy lots of wonderful things—and will. What's the use of having money if you can't spend it and be happy?"

"You talk," she said, flushing, "as if money could buy happiness—as if it were the only thing necessary to happiness." The words of Jimmy—those hot words he had turned at her yesterday in the park—were searing her mind.

"I should hate to try to be happy without it," Church answered slowly, looking at her intently.

Traffic had stopped them at an intersection. He gazed about him idly, conscious of the impressive picture he made in his expensive car, and beside him this beautiful girl.

His eyes suddenly lighted with recognition; his lips framed a grin that was half sneer, and he turned to her.

"There's an old friend," he remarked contemptuously. "See him?"

Something in his tone lifted her out of her lethargy—caught at her and antagonized her.

"Where?" she asked, meeting his look.

He jerked a thumb toward the truck in which Jimmy sat, and started of the car. Mary had a swift, fleeting glance of Jimmy, sitting red-headed, eyes staring straight ahead, driving away. She knew instantly that Jimmy had seen them, and in spite of the fact that Jimmy had seen her hurt because she hadn't spoken, she had been looking straight in his direction when Church had called her attention.

"Quite a car he was driving," sneered the man at her side. "A laundry truck. Do you and that other happen to use that laundry, Mary? Perhaps he will be calling for your soiled clothing."

Swift color flooded her cheeks. "If he did," she said evenly, "I'm sure I wouldn't laugh at him because of his job. Why should anyone laugh at him?"

at him? It's honest work he's doing. Isn't it? It's nothing to be ashamed of."

Church frowned. "You misunderstand me, Mary. Of course, he should be ashamed. If he's as intelligent as he tries to make people believe, he could be doing something better. I can't forgive lack of ambition."

"He doesn't lack ambition," she said. "He's had to get a job and this is the only thing that offered. You know he had a job at my office, and he was doing very well when he was discharged. I never could understand why."

He shot her a swift, searching look. "Probably for a very good reason," he said. "They are insistent at the Q. and R. Railroad on good character."

"How do you know he hasn't good character?" she asked quickly.

"I know nothing about it, nothing at all. However, it wasn't anything by his credit to be seen with a drunken woman in his arms on the street."

"How do you know," she asked, watching him through narrowed eyes, "that she was drunk?"

He shrugged. "I think I know the symptoms. They're rather unmistakable."

"I know differently," she pursued. "She wasn't drunk, as you say."

He started. "Why, how—how do you know?" he stammered. "Have you

MEMBERS BOARD PRODUCE ASSN. ARE VINDICATED

Delegates Representing Commission Members
Vote Appeal

Chicago—Complete vindication plus wholehearted approval was accorded the board of directors of the Chicago Producers Commission association by over 600 delegates representing livestock producer-members located in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin in the special meeting which was held here Thursday at the Stock Yards Inn.

The vindication of the seven board members came when the 600 delegates emphatically and unanimously refused to accept the resignation of the board, which had been tendered as a result of Secretary Jardine's order suspending their organization from doing business on the Chicago stockyards for 30 days beginning March 20.

The Secretary's suspension order contained charges of mismanagement and incompetency of the board, and when the seven directors met to consider what they should do in view of the suspension order, they decided not to carry the fight further into the courts, although their lawyers said this could be successfully done, but instead called this special meeting and announced that their resignations, including the manager's, would be tendered. This was done. The folks from the country were called in to be judges and jury.

The meeting was handled by the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Livestock Producers. Actual responsibility was delegated to the secretaries of the state farm bureaus of the five states concerned. John G. Brown, past president of the National Livestock Producers association, was named by this committee as chairman for the day, and a program was laid down. This consisted of a statement by the manager, S. W. Doty; by the president, A. Sykes, Ida Grove, Iowa, and C. A. Ewing, Decatur, Ill., speaking for the board of directors.

Manager Doty traced the growth of the Producers from birth to the present time, saying that the Chicago office was opened June 19, 1922 with 29 green employees and $16,000 capital. "The day we opened we found 120 old-line commission firms openly fighting us," declared Doty. "We got six cars the first day and in a short time we were handling enough stock to be on a paying basis. Then came the boycott; no one would buy from us excepting the packers, and they took advantage of us. Then the late Henry C. Wallace, then secretary of agriculture, interceded in our behalf and our first battle with old-line interests was won."

By Jan. 1923 we had paid off all our debts and had become the largest hog seller on the Chicago yards, a title which we have never relinquished. The close of the first fiscal year found us having handled 1,025 carloads and with $63,000 to refund to the farmers. We paid back 30 per cent of the commission charges.

"The duties of the manager increased with this increased business. There was supervision of field work, office force and many other things. As a result, as much personal attention as should have been given to the selling was taken by other things. Due to this added responsibility, such errors as that of the feed account happened and we took steps to rectify it until now we get our feed account to balance within 105 bushels over a year's time on 39,139 bushels handled."

"Today the Chicago Producers have 60 employees and we have done a business of $100,400,956 and handled 57,100 cars of livestock in our short three years of life."

Manager Doty's report was received, first with askance by the somewhat skeptical 600, but when he concluded he was given a riotous round of applause and handclapping. Next came W. E. Rumble, chief counsel for the Chicago Producers during the hearing.

"We didn't get a fair hearing in this case," he declared. "It is not fair to suspend the Producer board of directors because of the acts of these three dishonest employees who manifestly were acting beyond the terms of their employment when they accepted bribes. The recent startling disclosures in the newspapers that many employees of the packers on these yards have been found guilty of dishonest practices in connection with inspection of meats is a parallel case to that of the Producers. If Secretary Jardine follows his same interpretation, he would have to suspend the board of directors of Swifts, Armour and other packing concerns."

"I wish to emphasize that the officials of the Packers and Stockyards act, in reply to a direct question, stated that they have not a single shred of evidence against the manager or any official connected with the Chicago Producers."

C. B. Denman, of Farmington, Mo., president of the National Livestock Producers Association and the E. St. Louis Producers, gave a fiery speech in which he announced that the St. Louis Producers would operate a branch on the Chicago yards during the 30-day suspension of their Chicago sister and would take care of all business assigned to the Chicago Producers.

"Suckers" Who Have Made Good in Big Activities

Bloomington, Ill., March 22—(AP)—Every title in the United States army, from private in the rear rank with a musket on his shoulder, to Major General with three stars on his shoulder has been borne by James G. Harbord who was born at Bloomington, Illinois, March 21, 1866. He served Uncle Sam for 33 years, in the army, and when he was retired at the age of 41, several years ago he started out on a business career, as President of the Radio Corporation of America.

His connection with this highly scientific work was not due so much to his organizing and executive ability, which made him famous as the chief of the A. E. F., as to his actual scientific education.

He graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural College at the age of 20 and three years later enlisted in the Fourth Infantry. But in 1895, in spite of military duties he had won the M. S. degree at his alma mater.

General Pershing took him over as chief of staff for the A. E. F. with the first detail of Americans who landed in France to prepare for the millions of American boys to come. But when the great need came, "Jim" as he was known to General Pershing, was given the command at critical points.

When the allied panic began to spread under the German thrust at Chateau Thierry, the marines and Gen. Harbord were thrown into the breach—and the Germans were stopped. The next week, he was given a similar job at Soissons, with the same results. Then when the allies morale returned, he took charge of the Service of Supply, and after the war in straightening out the details of the returning army he was again made chief of staff.

Few if any other Americans received so many recognitions of valor from foreign governments, for World War service, as General Harbord.
